

Company Statement

The solar industry has been confronted with reports about the supply chain issue over the past few weeks.

This matter has only recently come to the attention of many solar companies – including Q CELLS – that are reliant on the global and complex solar supply chain for their business. As a manufacturer of both solar cells and modules, Q CELLS buys wafers from a number of sources globally.

The company is aware of the reports, and all the while remains committed to serving its global customers with solar products that meet global ESG compliance standards in all aspects, including manufacturing.

Q CELLS is examining various avenues to ensure that these values are upheld throughout our entire procurement process.